MONDAY, MARCH 17, 1902.

People are now offering to bet two to one that Fred E. Smith will receive the Republican nomination for Treasurer.

Mr. Bryan said in New York, Wednesday night, that had Mr. Aliged chosen his moment of death, it would have been such as came to him. "All of us who knew him can be glad of this, that his last blows were struck in the cause of an oppressed people, in a cause to which he was devoted. He was, I believe, a truly great man and his services will be missed, his place found hard to fill."

Representative Randall, of Texas, has introduced a joint resolution in Congress, extending recognition and sympathy to the people and governments of the South African republic and the Orange Free State, appealing to the British government to cease hostilities and requesting the President to tender the good offices of this government. Mr. Randall appears to be mistaking Congress for the General Assembly of Texas.

An unpleasant sensation was caused in the House of Commons by the statement that the bones of British soldiers killed in the Afghan war of 1842, were announced to be sold at auction in London. Mr. Ritchie said that, assuming the relics were genuine—a large assumption—no breach of the law would be committed by their sale. He had no power to interfere. Such a sale, however, he considered highly improper, if not indecent, and he would take care that his view of the matter reached the auctioneer.

ANOTHER EXPLANATION.

Senator Tillman has taken pains to explain to the people of South Carolina that he meant no offense to them when he said in his Senate apology that the office of Governor had in a measure unfitted him to serve in a deliberative body. His Senate remarks were necessarily condensed, if permitted to expand them he would say—

"In the Governor's office my everyday work was to give orders and decide questions, many of them important, without consulting any one. This habit of mind and thought unfitted me for entry upon the arena I found here. Senatorial courtesy and dignity and everything connected with the routine work of the body was altogether strange and different from my ideas, and I have never yet been able to adapt myself to the many customs and habits of the Senate. This was all. I cannot conceive how any one would imagine that I could assert or confess that a Governor of South Carolina cannot be dignified and behave himself, here or elsewhere."

HOT TIME

In the Old Town of Canal Dover For a While.

Canal Dover, O., March 17.—A panic was narrowly averted at the Big Four Opera house in this city Saturday night. The comedy, "Railroad Jack" was played to a big house. Ever since the steel strike and the operation of the mills here by non-union men the feeling between union and non-union labor has been at high tension. The Mayorality campaign is on and political feeling is very bitter. The tramp in the play presented last night is made to say, "You are a black sheep," and adds, "I'll run for Mayor of Canal Dover." A non-union sheet roller present took exception to the expressions and started for the stage. For the moment the vast audience was paralyzed. In a frenzy, men yelling and women screaming, everybody sprang to their feet. Men sprang forward to restrain the non-union roller, the actors prepared to shoot him if he leaped on the stage and guns and knives were flourished freely. The electrician turned off the lights and left the theatre in total darkness. The police arrested the offender.

Wise and Otherwise

Easter eggs are as gaudy this year as ever.

Why wouldn't it be a good scheme to build a City Hall by donation, too?

What a gorgeous show of finery if Easter shall be as nice a day as yesterday.

If there are to be only two Commissioners, what will Mr. McMillen and Mr. McFarland do?

If "Art" Limric would pickle that fish joke it would probably turn up next year stronger than ever.

Council meets tonight for the transaction of business, not for the celebration of St. Patrick's day.

Now that those eight candidates for Recorder have all put up their money, there will probably be something "diddling."

Over in Youngstown the newspaper men have formed a club, based on "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," and the Tale Teller of the Telegram remarks, that "the club was organized without a gun being fired, a sword drawn, or a man killed, wounded or missing on either side." From this it would seem that the "late unpleasantness" between the Telegram and the Vindicator was merely the storm which precedes a calm; or has the Mayor put the billigerants under bond to keep the peace?

The Palatka (Fla.) News relates a story of an error made by Gov. Jennings in filling out a warrant for the execution of J. B. Brown, a negro murderer. By some unexplained blunder the Governor omitted the name of Brown from the document and inserted in its place that of Noah J. Tilghman, of Palatka, a Methodist minister, a white man and one of the most respected citizens of the town. The Sheriff was directed in the warrant to hang Rev. Mr. Tilghman on January 25. Of course he did not do so, but the minister is very much annoyed over the incident, and feels that an apology is due him—a view which, strangely enough, the Governor refuses to take.

The local option issue is to come up at Newton Falls soon, and Editor Green is championing the cause of the "drys." This week Editor Green received a letter like this:

Mr. Greeney: If you publish your paper once more like the one this week, all for such nonsense, nothing but closing the saloons, I don't pay you for the paper to read such darn trash. If you can't leave that out, just publish it once more, and you can stop my paper, and they are as many more the same way as you see dots here that will never give you another dollar, and if you would spend your time in cleaning your face instead of writing other stuff, you would be more thought off, you hypocrite. This town would be a good deal better off if you would go and see the bottom of the river. Maybe that would soak the black off your face. You make a stink once every year, get the people all stirred up like you would stir up a hornet's nest. Go clean your self before you meddle with other folks business.

"Look here," said the Cautious Individual, "when St. Patrick drove all the snakes and other pests out of Ireland, why didn't he include the horse fly? I was in Ireland once, and I'll tell you, I would rather meet a dozen reptiles than be stung just once by that horrible insect."

"Well," said the Listener, "it happened like this. When St. Patrick, Heaven rest his soul, was busy driving the procession of reptiles, bugs and all such obnoxious creatures out of Ireland into the sea, he was mightily pestered by the devil who would make a scatterment of the lot as fast as the Saint could get them together. The horse fly, being an observant little creature, saw what a predicament the good old Saint was in and seeing a chance to do him a good turn and perhaps save his own hide, flew away and with a buzz settled in the devil's ear, and do what he would, the gentleman of the scarlet robe could not dislodge it, and finally so unendurable became his agony that he fled from Ireland and has never been able to gain a foothold in the place since. In appreciation of this service, St. Patrick allowed the horse fly to remain."

They were a half dozen young ladies and the springtime's touch of sun had set their blood to dancing. They were eager for a good time, and decided to have a party. They didn't propose to have the regulation stereotyped affair with music and dancing and supper. No, they were going to have something novel, something different, and only ladies were to be there. Their masculine friends were strictly barred.

The night came and the girls were all there in costumes that in many instances were highly becoming, but were meant for feminine eyes alone. The boys, however, had noticed sundry whispered conferences and knowing glances, and came to the conclusion that there was something brewing. Developing certain characteristics usually accredited to the opposite sex they set themselves to work to find out what was going on. They discovered that the party was to be given on a certain night out in the neighborhood of Campbell st., and that they were not to be invited, but they decided to be present nevertheless. The only thing that bothered them was that they did not know exactly where the girls were to be entertained. They set to work, however, and with all the astuteness of a professional "sleuth" ferreted out the secret and when the festivities

In The Summer

Of life a woman may find herself fading and failing. She doesn't understand it. She goes to doctors, who treat her for this or for that, but she gets no better. She grows frail and pale. She can just "drag about the house," but has no pleasure in life. Many such women have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, and have been restored by Dr. Pierce's treatment to perfect health. There is no more wonderful medicine for women than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Its action upon the womanly organs is at once apparent and five of the Golden Pills cure weakness and such diseases as drive away the strength and beauty of women. Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Before I commenced to use your medicine I was in a bad condition (for eight years) and four doctors treated me," writes Mrs. Nettie Askey, of Garysburg, Northampton Co., N. C. "They, of course, gave me at the time some relief, but it did not last long. I was some days in my bed and some days I dragged about the house. I have used five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and four vials of the 'Relief.' Now I feel like a new woman, and I want the world to know it." The action of the "Favorite Prescription" is assisted by the use of "Pleasant Pellets" when the bowels are irregular.

were at their height, succeeded by bringing a small boy in gaining admittance to the house.

There were a few screams, a sudden scurrying of slipped feet and the boys were in sole possession of the scene where the gay and hilarious festivities were so rudely broken up.

But though the boys held possession of the room, their fair charmers had fled. The aforementioned small boy, however, appeared on the scene and said that though the girls were gone he could get them a flashlight picture for which the girls had posed just prior to the interruption and would do so for a consideration. The depraved youngster was given enough change to keep him in candy for a week to come and later deliver the picture.

The girls have been scheming ever since to get it back, but as yet have been unsuccessful.

MAUD WAS A CITY GIRL.

Maud Muller on a summer's day. Set a hen in a brand new way. (Maud, you see, was a city girl, trying the rural life a whirl.) She covered a box with tinsel gay, lined it snugly with new mown hay, filled it nicely with eggs, and then started to look for a likely hen. Out of the flock selected one, and then she thought that her work was done.

It would have been, but this stubborn hen stood up and cackled "Ka-doo!" and then Maud Muller came, and in hurt surprise looked coldly into the creature's eyes; then tied its legs to the box. "You bet I know how to make you set." But still it stood, and worse and worse shrieked forth its wrongs to the universe.

Kicked over the box with tinsel gay, and indignantly flapped away. Then a bad boy, over the barnyard fence, Tee-heed: "Say, Maud, there's a difference between hens, you know, and it is that one says 'Ka-doo!' and one 'Ka-dat!'"

Then Maud recalled that the ugly brute she tried to set had said "Ka-doo!" And ever since that historic day she blushes in an embarrassed way to think of the bobbie she made once when she tried to set a gentleman hen. —Wichita Eagle.

THE COOK OF COMPANY K.

You have heard of many heroes Who have helped to win the day,— But have you heard the story of 'The cook of Company K?

We were out on skirmish duty, All hungry as a bear; And thought more of our stomachs than The bullets in the air.

The cook was right amongst us there With kettle, boiling soup; And when the order came to charge He went right with our troop.

He followed us with mighty strides; The kettle in one hand, The other waved the spoon aloft And beat time for the band.

He finally stumbled on a bog, And down went soup and all— It only took a little spring To rally from the fall.

He rose and charged with pot and spoon Until the day was won, And didn't spill a drop of soup When he was on the run.

And then we found the fight had been So very, very hot, That when we quit, that mess of soup Was boiling in the pot.

We filled our cartridge belts with shells, And filled ourselves with soup; And made the cook of Company K The captain of our troop. —WM. T. SAWYER.

HONORED

The Memory of St. Patrick.

Akron People Wore the Shamrock.

Not to the usual extent was the green worn in Akron, Monday, in recognition of St. Patrick's day. It was undoubtedly because the cold, raw weather kept people of leisure indoors and prevented the free display of Shamrock always seen when St. Patrick's day is mild and warm. But the patron saint of Ireland was not forgotten. Here and there the green bows and sprigs of imitation shamrock were displayed and the fact that it was St. Patrick's day was brought to the attention of the multitude.

In St. Mary's church Sunday, Rev. Dr. Murphy, of Cleveland, preached a most able sermon on "St. Patrick." He quoted liberally from the writings of Redpath who visited Ireland during the famine years of a half century ago and many of his audience were in tears as he described the scenes of suffering. It was one of the best sermons ever given in St. Mary's church. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Father Clark, there were no other services in commemoration of the day in St. Mary's church. The usual services were held in St. Vincent's church.

At St. Mary's school hall tonight, the play "Hazel Kirke" will be given. At St. Vincent's school hall the play, "The Landlord and the Tenant" will be put on.

It is probably not generally known that St. Patrick's day this year commemorates the 1411th anniversary of the death of the illustrious apostle, who found Ireland a pagan nation and made it a Christian nation. This is the unique distinction that belongs to Patrick—that of having in his lifetime converted a whole nation from paganism to Christianity. He came to Ireland as a missionary in 430. There was then not a Christian church, or probably not a Christian man or woman, in the land. Patrick died in 491, at the extraordinary age of 122. Ireland was then covered with churches, and all her people were Christians, which, of course, means that they were Catholics, for besides the Catholic there was no other Christian body at that time in the world, or for a thousand years afterward.

Another noteworthy distinction also belongs to the great work of the great Irish apostle. It was all accomplished without the sacrifice of a single human life. In other lands the blood of martyrs was the seed of the church. Ireland's conversion was effected without the martyrdom of teacher or disciple. The Irish received the faith with docility and devotion, and strong love for the holy man who went among them for 61 years preaching and doing wonderful things in testimony of the truth of the divine doctrine he taught, as one of the old bards tells us:

"The holy saint, with zeal and Christian courage, Did propagate the gospel of his Master For one and sixty years, and miracles Performed, strong evidence of truth."

Just one exception, however, has to be made to the statement that Patrick's mission in Ireland was completed without the shedding of a drop of blood, but it is an exception which shows the intense reverence of the Irish converts for the ceremonies of the religion they had so willingly accepted. The story is told as follows by the Abbe Macgeoghegan, in describing the conversion and baptism of Angus, King of Munster:

"This prince, being informed of the sanctity and virtues of the holy apostle (Patrick), came forth to meet him, received him with every mark of distinction and respect, and brought him to his city of Cashel, where he heard the word of God, and was converted, with his whole court. A singular fact is related of the Christian fortitude and patience of Angus during the ceremony of his baptism. The bishop (Patrick), having leaned on his pastoral staff (crosier), which was pointed with iron, it pierced the king's foot, but he suffered the pain without complaining till the ceremony was ended. The apostle, hearing of the accident, asked him why he had not complained. The king answered, respectfully, that he thought it formed part of the ceremony."

Another account tells that when St. Patrick heard the king's answer and saw the blood flowing from his foot, he exclaimed: "Angus, you're well baptized."

Such was the spirit in which the Irish received the faith of Christ from their great apostle. With what spirit and tenacity and devotion they have retained it ever since, is known to all the world—known so well that Irish and Catholic have long been popularly regarded as almost synonymous words.

Fire Sale of Pianos and Organs.

For the past year I have accumulated old pianos and organs. I received in trade one hundred of these instruments in the months of October, November, and December. I have sold great numbers of them to outside piano dealers, but I have still a large stock of them left.

I am going to do something with these instruments sell them, give them away or burn them up. One year ago, 24 people in a single day took advantage of a bargain of this kind.

1 old upright, 7-13, ivory keys, rosewood finish, just the thing for some one to learn on. Ought to bring when fixed up, $200—$35 buys it, $5 cash, and $5 per month.

1 $100 Leight & Newton piano, $15, $5 down, $3 per month.

1 Valentine & Blake square piano, $12 buys it, $3 down, $1 per mo.

1 Fisk & Sons piano, other dealers would ask $100 for a square like this. It ought to bring $30—$20 buys it, $4 down, $1 per month.

1 George Hughes square piano, ought to bring $50, in good condition, ivory keys, plays all right, $15 buys it, $5 down, $3 per month.

1 Dubois, Baker & Chambers piano, $10 buys it, $5 down, $1 per month.

1 Simon & Clough piano, worth $15; $7 buys it, $2 down, $1 per month.

1 Mason & Hamlin organ, $5 buys it, $1 down, $1 per month.

1 Big Mason & Hamlin Organ, has two banks of keys, at the price of $35, $12 buys it, $2 down, $1 per month.

1 Philpot Organ, 7 stops, at the price $35; $3 takes this organ.

1 Meloplane, 1-6 oct. musical instrument, and one other 5 oct. musical instrument, $4.

1 8 oct. musical instrument, ivory keys, in good condition, $5.

1 other nice little 5 oct. instrument, $4.00.

Now, I am going to sell every one of these instruments, and if you want one, come in quick, as I shall take them out and burn them up, if you or some other man, woman or child don't buy them.
